If you have taken an airplane before, chances are that you have tried in-flight meals. Here are some interesting facts about airplane meals that you might not know:

Meals are carefully planned up to a year _____ . That's because every ingredient counts—American Airlines saved $40,000 a year by removing a single olive _____ each of their in-flight salads.

Often foods are tested in flight. This is because cabin pressure affects your palate. The lack of humidity dries your nose, and as a plane _____ , the change in pressure numbs one-third of your taste buds. So most foods may taste flavorless at high altitudes. Even the sound of the engines affects _____ you perceive taste—loud and constant noise continuously affects your tongue.

As a rule of thumb, food is prepared 10 hours before it gets _____. Suppose a flight is delayed, and food has already been loaded onto the plane. In that case, airplanes often dump the entire load and order a replacement shipment from catering to prevent passengers from _____ food poisoning. _____ it may appear costly and wasteful, ensuring passengers' safety and health is undoubtedly way more important to airlines.

The year 2020 has been terrible for the restaurant industry in most countries around the world. As COVID-19 rages on, many countries have had to shut down restaurants and other eating establishments. 63 Instead, more people are choosing to cook at home. In countries like the United States, this has led to new food trends becoming popular. 64 While these companies advertise their products as being better for the environment and healthier for the body, they have long struggled with one major problem: taste. How do you create the juicy taste of a beef burger by using only plant-based ingredients? 65 Another problem with plant-based meats is their high prices. These products are expensive because the companies that produce them spend a lot of money on research and advertising. Moreover, people in Western countries are not as familiar with non-meat products like tofu and seitan as people in Asian countries are. 66 This solution has worked and led to a large increase in sales during the summer of 2020. Perhaps in a few decades, plant-based "meats" will eventually replace real meats in our modern diets!

- |   |
|---|
| (A) Compared with one year ago, not nearly as many people dine out today.   |
| (B) However, companies like Beyond Meat have come up with a solution: selling cheap value packs at grocery stores around the country.                                   |
| (C) One such trend is the increased interest in plant-based meat products, which are sold by companies like Beyond Meat and Impossible Foods.                           |
| (D) Scientists at these companies have tried to solve this problem by adding more plant oils to their burgers and other fake meat products to increase their juiciness. |

第 67-69 題為題組

More and more travelers are choosing to fly on budget airlines to save money. But what can you expect with a budget airline? Well, first off, don't expect to be served an actual meal on the plane. Most budget airlines do not include food or meals in the price of tickets unless you pay an extra fee during booking. Even so, the food will be dull, usually consisting of a light sandwich or instant noodles—nothing worth mentioning! Next is the lack of space. Each seat is the same throughout the entire plane. There is no such thing as reserved seats without paying an added fee. Seats are normally assigned by a computer depending on the order of your arrival at the check-in counter. Moreover, even though most airlines emphasize being on time, budget airlines are famous for breaking this rule, including even sudden cancellations. So, be sure to read the fine print before booking. Lastly, another concern is the lack of in-flight services such as TV screens to watch movies, listen to music, or access the Internet. To lower their costs, nearly all budget airlines cut back in these areas, which can be a big no-no for some travelers. Flying on budget airlines isn't for everyone, so keep the above information in mind when booking your next flight!

67. What is the passage mainly about?

- (A) Things that travelers should know before taking budget airlines.
- (B) Things that travelers should know in an emergency situation.
- (C) Things that travelers should do before boarding a budget airplane.
- (D) Things that travelers cannot do while flying on a budget airline.

68. How are seats assigned when people fly on budget airlines?

- (A) They are reserved for passengers when they are checking in.
- (B) They are chosen by passengers when they book their flight tickets.
- (C) They are decided by a computer depending on when passengers arrive at the check-in counter.
- (D) They are decided by a computer when people book their flight tickets.

69. What can you expect when flying on a budget airline?

- (A) In-flight meals are included in the ticket price.
- (B) Flights could be canceled on short notice.
- (C) Budget airlines are known for being on time.
- (D) There are many in-flight entertainment services.

第 70-72 題為題組

Afternoon tea at Claridge's is the absolute afternoon tea experience. Founded in 1856, with a history of over 160 years, this tea salon is one of the oldest places in London to enjoy afternoon tea. Even just getting a reservation can take three months! The location, interior design, and foyer are all truly remarkable and alone worth a visit. Another inviting feature is that the dress code is surprisingly relaxed – a jacket for men is not required but a shirt and trousers are a necessity. Of course, everything on the menu is prepared by outstanding chefs and tea experts and they offer a great selection of world-class teas.

Be sure to try their classic Claridge's Blend (a black tea), and their jasmine tea. They also offer a traditional selection of sandwiches, including smoked salmon, chicken, ham, egg with mayonnaise, and cucumber. And when it comes to cakes, Claridge's has perfected the game by including a little bit of everything – from fruit and chocolate pastries to Victorian sponge cake. Additionally, their cake selection is changed weekly to keep guests guessing. For all these reasons and more, it's no wonder Claridge's is the top-rated afternoon tea spot in London. Make sure to give it a try the next time you're in town!

70. What is the main purpose of this passage?

- (A) To evaluate different teahouse styles.
- (B) To recommend a top-rated place for afternoon tea.
- (C) To list delicious desserts a good teahouse should offer.
- (D) To explain how to run a successful teahouse.

71. Which of the following special features of Claridge's is NOT mentioned in this passage?

- (A) Its snacks and drinks.
- (B) Its style and decoration.
- (C) Its service charge
- (D) Its relaxing dress code.

72. What does the passage NOT tell us about Claridge's cakes?

- (A) The cakes are baked by excellent bakers.
- (B) Diverse ingredients are added to their cakes.
- (C) Their cakes come in various forms and flavors.
- (D) They have won numerous prizes for their high quality.

In June 2015, the Washington Post and the BBC both ran remarkable articles on a moving survival story which came out of Colombia, South America. The following first-person account is based on these reports and describes the incredible real-life events from the perspective of one of the two survivors.

- ① Apart from its heavy load of coconuts and fish, there were just three of us on the aircraft: the pilot, myself, and my one-year-old baby boy, Yudier. We had just taken off from Nuqui and would be landing in Quibdo soon. At least, that is what I imagined.
- ② It happened around twenty minutes after take-off. I have no idea what went wrong in the cockpit, but it seemed as if the aircraft was out of control. Then, the plane dived sharply, and all I could do was try to hold on to the seat and to my child.
- ③ Seconds later, there was a violent crash as we tore through the tree branches and smashed into the jungle floor. The next thing I knew, the inside of the airplane was on fire, and I was fighting for my life to open the small cabin door.

- ④ I finally managed to bend it open and, terrified of the flames, ran a number of steps into the dense jungle. It was then that my mind finally began to clear a little, and I suddenly remembered Yudier.
- ⑤ Without thinking, I immediately ran back into the burning aircraft. Though the fire licked at my face and limbs, I found him and carried him out as fast as I could. It's a miracle that he was completely unhurt.
- ⑥ With my baby safely outside, a new fear seized me. I thought the wreck was going to explode, so I stopped just long enough to collect some coconuts. Then we left the shattered plane and the pilot's lifeless body behind and simply stumbled into the jungle.
- ⑦ After about half a kilometer, I finally stopped and sat down beside a river, breathing hard and slowly rocking Yudier until he stopped crying. I realized then, for the first time, that my ankle was broken.
- ⑧ The next few days were the longest of my life. I built a basic shelter right on that spot and collected rainwater with large leaves. This, along with the unripe coconuts, kept us alive until the fifth day, when we finally heard the rescue party calling our names.

73. Which of the following statements are NOT mentioned in the text above? (2%)

- (A) The exact cause of the plane's sudden descent and dramatic crash.
- (B) The distance between the wreck and the survivors' temporary shelter.
- (C) The age of the little child that somehow survived this horrific accident.
- (D) The destination that this airplane was heading for when it crashed.

74. Using the text above as a guide, fill in the table below which summarizes the condition that the rescue team would have found the survivors in.

	Child	Mother
Level of hydration	Partially dehydrated.	Partially dehydrated.
Major injuries	None.	Broken 74-1 _____. (1%)
Burns suffered	None.	On leg, arm, and 74-2 _____. (1%)
Other complaints	None.	None.

75. Which word used in the text above is most likely to mean "the section of an aircraft reserved for the pilot"? (簡答, 2 分)
